Training Description:

The helping field is filled with big-hearted people with the greatest intentions. Many clinicians bring all they have to each effort of treatment, in hopes to assist in healing. It is hard to imagine those same people frequently committing cultural and ethical violations. This training will provide foundational information about a culturally committed ethical approach to treatment and how to avoid some unintentional missteps.

About Dr. Helm:

Dr. Charles Helm has worked toward a deeper cultural understanding within the helping field for over 13 years. He has emerged as a trusted voice of cultural awareness, empathy, learning, and authentic observations. His professional achievements include creating learning experiences for college administrators, professors, and correctional administrators regarding inclusion and microaggressions. He has worked with people who have committed sexual offenses and currently serves as the Workforce and Career Development Advisor for the Center for Global Health - Center for Disease Control and Prevention.
